How Does a Member Qualify for the Fellowship Degree of Honor?

Reports are run each month to determine members who have qualified for elevation. These reports are reviewed by the Territory Manager of the member's primary Lodge, as well as the Moose International Compliance Office, to assure there are no disciplinary concerns. Once these reviews have been completed, the individual will receive a call to appear for conferral, provided no issues have been identified.

Those members who qualify during the months of July through March will receive their initial call to appear for the conferral that will take place during the next International Moose Convention. Those who qualify during the months of April, May or June will receive their initial call to the conferral that will take place at their respective Association Conventions. In either instance, a member will only receive four calls to appear for conferral. If they do not appear after four (4) calls, they will not receive another opportunity.
